

Having that Perfect Invitation for your Bridal Shower

You must not forget to have a perfect bridal shower invitation, if you want to have a perfect bridal shower. People were invited to parties and other event with town criers during the Middle Ages. Since most of the people then are illiterate, this was so much practical. After several centuries, the invitations of the nobility were then written by the monks and were served personally to the guests. This was the familys way of showing how wealthy they are since the payment for the monks were quite high. The practice of bridal showers then started during the Victorian Era. When lithography was invented, also during this time, invitations for all occasions even for bridal showers were then printed in similar way we have today. In the next century following the Victorian Era, bridal shower invitations were then engraved. This became the favorite of the nobility since it had the same handwritten look the monks used. Later on thermography was developed and it allowed cheaper printing. This type of invitation, for bridal shower and other occasions, was then used by everybody, not just the elite and the members of the nobility. It became the start of mass produced bridal shower invitations. Since it was already the modern times, the masses started imitating the bridal showers of the nobles and the rich and famous, and this included the bridal shower invitations. The members of the elite then decided it was their responsibility to better educate the masses by sharing with them their expertise. There was even a book on etiquette on how to properly address the invitations written by Emily Post and Amy Vanderbilt. Today, people know that bridal shower invitations, similar with the wedding invitations, must complement the style of the bridal shower. The host must have a traditional bridal shower invitation if they are having a traditional bridal shower. Then there are some hosts who want to give theme bridal shower. In this case, they must also show the theme in the bridal shower invitations. There is no longer a single rule that applies to these invitations. It is now even common to see bridal shower invitations written by the host. Cakes, chocolate and even candies invitations are now also being used. What is important today is that the bridal shower invitation, to be perfect, must be appropriate with the theme of the shower. This means that the theme and style of the bridal shower must be reflected on the bridal shower invitations.
